

I feel that it is necessary for the FCC to limit telemarketing practices throughout the nation, but I feel that states should also but able to control the telemarketing calls their citizens receive. If the FCC decides to pass regulations on telemarketing, they should allow states to also maintain their regulations already being used. I would hope that the Federal Government would respect the rights of states to govern their own and not continue to force the citizens of one state to live by the rules of another.